

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. A GUIDE,

ETC.

THE Department of Printed Books is extremely rich in objects of interest and curiosity. As, however, the space available for their display is limited, it has been considered advisable to make such a selection as, under the circumstances, may be most instructive and interesting. Of the very first efforts of the inventors of the Art of Printing no specimens are known that can be clearly identified as such, but books of sufficiently early date exist to enable us to show its rise and early progress, and this is all that the present exhibition can pretend to trace.

Block-Books, although the immediate precursors of printing, must not be regarded as the form in which the art first developed itself, but rather as the perfection of another art, which had prevailed for many years previously—that of engraving on wood—and perhaps of one particular form of it, that of card-making.

The Books which are displayed in the show cases for the purpose of tracing the progress of the art of printing occupy Cases III. to VIII., and are classed according to countries. This arrangement was necessary, because, although Germany took the lead, printing rapidly spread itself into other countries, and was carried on contemporaneously and with surprising vigour. It also displayed a remarkable distinctness of national character. Nothing can be more massive and vigorous than the German type, but it possesses none of the artistic grace and elegance of the Italian, which again differs totally from the fanciful and pleasing French type, while the English, in the hands of Caxton, shows four different forms (only one of them tolerably good, and that an imitation of the Secretary Gothic of the French)—gets on but little better with Lettoun and Machlinia—becomes hard, fixed, and ungraceful with Wynkyn de Worde, and only approaches elegance in the works of Pynson.

The subjects of the books printed within the first twenty or thirty years of the introduction of the art also display a national individuality as striking as that of the type. The prevailing subjects of those printed in Germany are Jurisprudence, Theology, and Philosophy; of those printed in Italy and France—Theology, Jurisprudence, Sciences, Greek and Roman Classics, History, Poetry, Romance; while in England, the subjects are nearly equally divided between Theology, works on Morals, Classical and Scriptural Legends, History, Poetry, Romance, and a little Jurisprudence. Among the productions of each of these countries Grammar and Language find a place, but not a prominent one until towards the close of the century.

Having shown the progress of the typographic art in the fifteenth century, the next case (No. IX.) displays specimens of sumptuous printing—i. e. works printed upon vellum and on large paper—and also of fine printing of more recent date. And here, in the specimens of modern fine printing, it will be seen how completely the distinctive character of the type of each country has disappeared with the progress of refinement, the beautiful type of Italy, called the Roman, driving the others out of the field, and leaving only so much difference as is recognisable by a practised eye.

The next step in the art, as displayed in Case X., is the Illumination of books. The Illumination, or pictorial embellishment of manuscripts, dates as far back as the fifth century, and when printing had become established was applied to printed books, but to those only of a more costly character, and particularly to those printed on vellum.

The Illustration of books by means of engravings on wood or copper is shown in Case XI. The simple uncoloured outline did, in fact, precede the coloured picture. But the first efforts of this nature on wood were extremely rude, owing, it is said, to the jealous refusal of the practised engravers on wood to assist, by their skill, the art of printing, which they feared would injure their own. The first printers were therefore obliged to engrave their own illustrations, as they were to cast their own type. The first illustrations were on wood, and in this, as well as in printing, Germany took the lead, being again closely followed by Italy, which, on the other hand, had the honour of producing the first book with copper-plate illustrations—Antonio Bettini's Monte Sancto di Dio.

The illustrations from engravings on wood and copper are followed by two cases containing a miscellaneous collection of literary curiosities and autographs, and the last comprises specimens of bookbinding from the sixteenth century downwards. Of this art it may be observed that, like that of printing, its earliest specimens display a degree of excellence which cannot be surpassed at the present day, and which modern binders are proud to be able to imitate successfully.

The table cases in which the books above referred to are exhibited, are placed in the room occupied by the magnificent collection presented by the Right Hon. Thomas Grenville, and in the King's Library. The room on the right or east side of the Hall, and opposite to the Great Staircase, contains the Grenville Library. This collection consists of 20,240 volumes, and cost its late owner upwards of £54,000. The same high feeling which characterised all his actions led him to bequeath his library to the public as an act of justice. His words are, "A great part of my library has been purchased from the profits of a sinecure office given to me by the public, and I feel it to be a debt and a duty that I should acknowledge this obligation by giving that library so acquired to the British Museum for the use of the public." On a pedestal in the centre of the right side of the room stands the bust of

Mr. Grenville, the gift of the Right Hon. Sir David Dundas, a Trustee of the British Museum. On the left side of the room are two table-cases, wherein are laid out Block-Books, of which the following is a list:—

CASE I.—BLOCK-BOOKS.

1. Biblia Pauperum, or Bible of the Poor, once a popular manual of devotion, and supposed to be the earliest of the "Block-books;" i. e. books printed from carved blocks of wood on one side of the leaf only, and executed in Holland, Flanders, and Germany during the first three quarters of the 15th century. The cuts are coloured by hand. Considered by Heineken to be the first edition. See his Idée Générale, &c., p. 292. Purchased in 1848.
2. Biblia Pauperum.—Block-book; the second edition, according to Heineken, Idée Générale, p. 307. From the library of King George III.
3. Biblia Pauperum.—Block-book. Bequeathed by the Right Hon. Thomas Grenville.
4. Biblia Pauperum.—Block-book. A German edition, the last leaf of which bears the date 1811 [1475]. This edition is remarkable for having a signature in the centre of the fold between each two leaves. Purchased in 1842.
5. The Apocalypse of St. John.—Block-book; the fifth edition, according to Heineken. From the library of King George III.
6. The Apocalypse of St. John.—Block-book, with the cuts coloured. From the library of King George III.
7. The Book of Canticles.—Block-book. Some copies of this edition have a Dutch inscription at the head of the first leaf. This copy has the inscription. See Ottley, History of Engraving, vol. i. p. 139. Purchased in 1838.
8. The Book of Canticles.—Block-book, with the cuts coloured by hand, and without any inscription. See Heineken, Idée Générale, &c., p. 374. Bequeathed by the Rev. C. M. Cracherode.
9. Defensorium inviolatæ Virginitatis beatæ Mariæ Virginis.—Block-book, with the cuts coloured, supposed to be unique.

The date 1728 [1470] occurs on p. 1. Purchased in 1849.

10. Defensorium inviolatæ Virginitatis beatæ Mariæ Virginis.—Block-book. Described by Jacobs and Ukert, Beiträge zur ält. Litt. p. 98, et seqq. Purchased in 1854.

CASE II.—BLOCK-BOOKS.

1. Ars Memorandi; or, a Memoria Technica for learning by heart the four Gospels.—Block-book; the second edition, according to Heineken, Idée Générale, &c., p. 396. Purchased in 1854.
2. Speculum Humanæ Salvationis.—Block-book. Grenv. Catal., Part 1, vol. ii. p. 678. Bequeathed by the Right Hon. Thomas Grenville.
3. Ars Moriendi.—Block-book; the second edition, according to Heineken, Idée Générale, p. 406. Purchased in 1845.
4. Ars Moriendi.—Block-book. Purchased in 1846.
5. Turris Sapiencie.—A single page, printed from a block. Purchased in 1849.
6. Temptationes Demonis.—A single page printed from a block, showing the seven deadly sins and the minor sins which spring from them, with the texts of Scripture applicable to each. Described in North British Review for Nov. 1846, p. 153. Purchased in 1842.
7. Mirabilia Romæ.—in German. Block-book, unknown to Heineken, printed about 1480. Described in Ædes Althorp. ii. 188. Purchased in 1857.
8. A German Almanack, by Magister Johann von Kunsperck, i. e. Johann Müller, called Regiomontanus.—Block-book, produced at the press of the celebrated Astronomer Regiomontanus, at Nuremberg, about 1474. Supposed to be the earliest printed almanack. Described in Panzer's Annalen, i. p. 76. Purchased in 1855.
9. A German Almanack.—Block-book, printed at Mentz about 1490. Purchased in 1855.
10. A German Almanack.—Block-book, printed at Leipzig, by Cunradt Kacheloven, about 1490. Purchased in 1858.

11. Opera nova contemplativa. Figure del Testamento Vecchio.—The last Block-book; printed at Venice about 1510, by Giovanni Andrea Vavassore. Purchased in 1848.
12. Impression from a block, representing Christ, guarded by Soldiers, before Herod.—Supposed date not later than the middle of the 15th century. Found pasted inside the cover of a copy of the Vitæ Patrum, attributed to St. Jerome. Purchased in 1852.
13. An impression from a block, representing the Virgin Mary and Infant Jesus between St. Joachim and St. Anne.—This and the following wood-print (the "Seven Ages") are pasted on the inside of what were the covers of N. de Lyra's Moralia super Bibliam. Purchased in 1846.
14. Impression from a block, representing the Seven Ages of Man, with the Wheel of Fortune in the centre.—Date about 1460. Described in the Archæologia, vol. xxxv., 1853. Purchased in 1846.
15. Planetenbuch.—Block-book representing the planets Saturn, Jupiter, the Sun, Venus, and the Moon, and their influences on human life, with German metrical descriptions. Printed about 1470. Purchased in 1860.

On quitting the Grenville Room, the visitors pass through an apartment containing Manuscripts, and enter the King's Library. This room was built expressly to receive the noble collection of books formed by His Majesty King George III., and presented to the nation by His Majesty King George IV. The royal collection is remarkable not only for the judicious selection of the works and the discriminating choice of the editions, but for the bibliographical peculiarities and rarity of the copies. On each side of the room are six table cases, numbered respectively III. to XIV. The books exhibited in the cases on the left side of the room illustrate the rise and early progress of the art of printing; those on the opposite side display certain peculiarities of printing, specimens of illustrations, of binding, or some feature of special interest. The contents of the several cases are as follow :—

CASE III.—SPECIMENS OF THE EARLIEST PRODUCTIONS OF THE PRINTING PRESS IN GERMANY.

1. Bible, in Latin.—The earliest complete printed book known, commonly called the Mazarine Bible because the

- copy which first attracted notice in modern times was discovered in the library of Cardinal Mazarin. Supposed to have issued from the press of Gutenberg and Fust, at Mentz, about 1455. From the library of King George III.
